Children's Day

In unity there is strength

How do we celebrate at AHISK?

Every year at AHISK, we celebrate children's day by wearing blue-colored shirts and dresses, making posters, presenting slideshows regarding children's day at morning assemblies, and educating others. We, at AHISK, make the best efforts to ensure our students are well informed about why we celebrate Children's day and its importance.

Why is Children's Day important?

Children's day represents how inequality affects each child's rights. From climate change, education, and mental health, to racism and discrimination; these factors implement issues toward children, and these are recognized by celebrating children's day. Celebrating children's day urges people to voice these problems and recognize the rights of children.

Children's rights are economic, social and cultural rights, such as the right to education, the right to a decent standard of living, and the right to healthcare. They also include individual rights such as the right to live with his or her parents, the right to education, the right to benefit from protection, etc.
